

Jewlya Lynn, PhD (ABD-2007), Research Director

Jewlya Lynn, Ph.D. (ABD), is the Research Director for the Center for Systems Integration in Denver, Colorado. She focuses on public policy transformation through research, facilitation, and stakeholder participation at both the state and local level. Ms. Lynn has lead research projects that combine policy analysis; community engagement; qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods approaches; resource mapping; community and organizational needs assessment; performance measurement; evaluation; and participatory approaches to planning, implementation, and research. She has worked across a broad range of substantive areas including health care and health systems, behavioral health, early childhood, secondary education, human services, child welfare, juvenile and criminal justice, diversity and inclusiveness, civic engagement, natural resources, and urban planning. Additionally, her training and experience includes facilitation, multi-party mediation, strategic planning, and grant writing. Ms. Lynn is currently completing a dissertation at the Graduate School of Public Affairs at the University of Colorado, Denver.

Contact Information:

Office: 303-455-1740

Email: Jewlya@CSI-Policy.org

Website: <http://www.csi-policy.org/>